Speaker Bowers: House Ethics Committee Will Have the Resources Needed for Timely and Thorough Investigation

STATE CAPITOL, PHOENIX – Speaker of the House Rusty Bowers (R-25) today announced that the House Ethics Committee has begun the process of investigating the ethics complaints against Representative David Stringer.

“The House Ethics Committee has received two ethics complaints against Representative David Stringer, and the committee has begun the process of investigating those complaints,” said Speaker Bowers. “Chairman Shope and the other members of the Ethics Committee have my full support, and the chair will receive the resources needed for a timely and thorough investigation. I look forward to their findings and recommendations.”

Speaker Bowers also announced that Representative David Stringer will be suspended from his remaining committee assignment – the House Government Committee – until the investigation has been completed and the Ethics Committee has made their recommendations to the House.
